FROM THE EDITOR

If you love a good deal—and enjoy crowing about your bargain-hunting prowess—you’ve come to the right place. We’ve dedicated this issue to celebrating thriftiness and sharing all our tips and sources. The fun starts with our cover story (“The Three Rs,” page 86) in which homeowners Catherine and Jeff Whittaker reveal that their beautifully remodeled ranch is more Craigslist scores than design center splurges. Then get ready to experience some cheap Z’s when you learn how to knock off a luxe velvet headboard (“Suite Dreams,” page 76) and runway-ready light fixtures (“Light Bright,” page 56). Team DIY is proud to tell you that our woven chandelier, this photo, is actually a cluster of wicker trash cans and toy baskets. And there’s more! We perform similar magic with low-cost items including grocery bouquets (“What to Do with Store-Bought Blooms,” page 40), an inexpensive woodburning tool (“Try It,” page 6), and pinecones (“Gathered Naturally,” page 68).

In the spirit of making something out of nothing, don’t miss the excitement of the latest Furniture Flip Challenge that assistant art director Emily Butterworth and I are delighted to be judging again. You’ll find the inside scoop on the Season 3 winners at builderschallenge.com/ffc.

May the season be festive and frugal!

WOODBURNING

Make your mark on home accents with this hot technique you can master in no time.

PROJECTS & STYLING LESLIE POYZER

PHOTOGRAPHS JASON DONNELLY

WORDS PAMELA PORTER

DIAMOND IN THE ROUGH An ikat-inspired design lends Moroccan style to a plain wood vase, this photo. Use a pencil to draw diamond shapes on the vase, or use a diamond pattern stencil and a ruler to mark placement more precisely. With a flow tip on the woodburning tool, sweep the tip back and forth about ¼ inch in a tight zigzag over the pencil lines until each diamond shape is drawn.

Use a shading tip to fill in the diamond, alternating the direction of the tip upward for a pass then downward until filled. Erase any remaining pencil lines.

FIND WOODBURNING
BASICS TIPS ON PAGE 13.

IF YOU'RE NOT CONFIDENT ABOUT
FREEHAND-DRAWING A
DESIGN, USE A PENCIL TO TRACE A STENCIL.

IN FULL BLOOM Give an unfinished wood caddy a fresh botanical outlook, above. Use a pencil to draw flowers on all corners of the caddy. Trace the pencil lines using a woodburning tool and flow tip, then add small flower dots using a ball tip. Erase any remaining pencil lines. To protect the design, spray with a clear water-base polyurethane sealer.

A NEW LEAF Make serving a natural art by transforming a simple wood cutting board into an organic leaf shape, above. Cut out the leaf outline using a saber saw or jigsaw. Sand edges smooth and wipe with a tack cloth. Use a pencil to draw a leaf stem and veining on the wood where desired. Trace pencil lines using a woodburning tool and your favorite tip (we used a mini flow tip and shading tip). Erase any remaining pencil lines, then coat the board with a food-grade mineral oil.

MAKING A SCENE Go on an art adventure by commemorating your favorite view. On a basswood panel, this photo, draw a landscape design in pencil. Trace over the pencil lines using a woodburning tool, varying the heat level from medium to high to create different shades. We used a rounded shading tip to make fine lines, a drawing tip to make crosshatch lines, and a universal shading tip to make the birds. Erase any visible pencil lines, then secure a leather band around the edge of the panel using gold-tone finish nails. Install a sawtooth hanger on the back of the panel and hang on the wall layered on top of a large fringed mat or a woven pillow cover.

INSTEAD OF LEATHER TRIM, YOU COULD USE PAINT, GOLD FOIL, OR RIBBON TO ADORN THE EDGE OF THE PANEL.

FRONT AND CENTER

Perk up an untreated pine dresser with a sassy scallop motif, this photo. Use a pencil and straightedge to draw two lines along the bottom of each drawer front and a single line 4 inches above those. Using a 5-inch-diameter circle template and starting at the center, draw arches on top of the double line, then draw arches on the single line, offset from the ones below. Draw lines at a 45-degree angle about every $\frac{1}{4}$ inch inside the bottom row of arches. Trace over all pencil lines using a woodburning tool and a general drawing tip. Erase any visible pencil lines.

IF YOUR DRESSER COMES UNASSEMBLED (LIKE OURS), COMPLETE THE WOODBURNING ON DRAWER FRONTS BEFORE ASSEMBLING IT.

WARM WELCOME Adorn a tight wall space with a tribal-inspired wall hanging, below. Use scissors to cut round and square cork coasters into desired shapes and sizes. Trace your cork shapes on paper and sketch a design in each shape. Using a woodburning tool, various tips, and your paper designs as a visual guide, burn designs into the cork. Because cork is soft, practice first on the back, applying less pressure with the hot tool than you would on wood. For gradation in color, move the tip faster for a lighter look and slower for a darker one. Using the leather hole punch and a piece of scrap leather as the backer piece to ensure a clean hole, punch holes in the cork pieces where desired to fasten together with cotton twine. To display, punch two holes into the top piece, then tie a large loop out of the cotton twine for hanging.

DO IT BETTER

EXPERIMENT WITH COLOR! AFTER BURNING DESIGNS ON TAGS, ADD WATERCOLORS OR STAINS TO THE BACKGROUND OR USE FINE-TIP PAINT PENS TO DRAW TINY COLOR ACCENTS OR A FUN BORDER.

TIE ONE ON Little customized tags lend big personality to gifts of all sizes, left. Use a pencil to draw a petite design on small wood rounds. Be sure to write "To:" and "From:" on the back. Trace over the lines using a woodburning tool and desired tip. Erase any remaining pencil lines. Drill a hole through the top of each round and tie to gifts using twine or yarn. For door hangers (see page 11), drill an additional hole at the bottom of the round and attach a tassel.

OFF THE RACK Make a coatrack, right, with a global vibe. Cut a pine board to desired size (ours is 6x30 inches). Photocopy or freehand draw a design that fits the board. Trace over carbon lines using a woodburning tool and drawing tip. Use fine sandpaper to remove any remaining carbon lines. Wipe clean. Measure and mark placement for novel hooks. Drill holes. Install hooks, cutting off excess screw lengths if needed. To hang, ensure coatrack is level, then screw into place through board into studs.

WOODBURNING BASICS

A centuries-old art with roots in pyrography, a reference to the Greek word for “fire,” today’s woodburning relies on user-friendly tools to make it a perfect crafting technique to try. Here are few tips for a novice burner to keep in mind.

TOOLS

Woodburning tools come in two main types—solid-point metal-tip burners and wire-nib-tip burners. Solid-point tools are less expensive but are slow to heat and cool. Wire-nib tools heat and cool quickly and are easier to maneuver, but they are more costly.

- Choose a tool with heat control settings, a comfortable grip, and a stand.
- Keep pliers on hand to carefully remove hot tips and secure cool tips to a hot tool. Position a dish in which to place hot tips.
- Shop for a variety of tips. Some tips even burn letters, numbers, shapes, and symbols.
- Keep tips clean of carbon residue as you work by passing them over a damp sponge or wire mesh as needed as you burn. Once cooled, clean tips gently using honing paper or a leather strap.

TECHNIQUE

Practice, practice, practice. Get comfortable using your burning tool with various tips to make different designs.

- Choose soft light-color wood with little or no grain for burning, and experiment with cork, leather, paper, or even gourds.
- Burn with the grain of the wood when possible as there will be less resistance.
- Light pressure works best to let the hot tip do the work and will result in fewer errors.

- Strive to complete continuous lines rather than starting and stopping.
- For organic shapes or writing, use a round or ball tip, which allows more freedom and fluidity to change directions smoothly.
- Gently blowing toward the tip as you burn can avoid overburning areas.
- Some smoke is to be expected, but lower the heat if it’s excessive.

SAFETY Woodburning tools are HOT! Use caution, supervise kids, and never leave the tool unattended.

- When hot, set tool on a silicone mat. Use tape to secure the tool’s stand to your work surface so it doesn’t topple.
- Work in a well-ventilated area—burning wood can create unhealthy fumes.
- Burn only natural, untreated surfaces. Paints, sealants, and other finishes release chemical toxins when burned.

YOU CAN USE UNFINISHED WOOD SLICES WITH A BARK EDGE OR WOOD BLANKS WITH A CLEAN EDGE FOR TAGS. TO GIVE UNFINISHED TAGS A FAUX-BARK LOOK, USE A BURNING TOOL TO BURN THE BLANK’S EDGE

HANDY GIRL

You want your DIY projects to be more eco-friendly, but not sure where to start? Use these tips to make your tasks environmentally wise—and save some green too!

WORDS KELLY ROBERSON ILLUSTRATIONS ANKE REGA

Handy Girls, it's time to think about how we can all amp up the green on our DIYing. Remember: Big goals are great, but small switches add up. Here's how to figure out what you can do, from sweating the small stuff (hello, trash) to diving deep into the big choices (lumber, I'm looking at you).

THE BIG PICTURE

IF YOU START TO DIG INTO THE ECO SIDE OF THE DIY WORLD, YOU MAY HEAR PHRASES LIKE "CRADLE TO GRAVE" AND "CRADLE TO CRADLE." THAT MEANS SIMPLY THINKING ABOUT MORE THAN THE PRODUCT ON THE SHELVES AND THE CHOICE IN FRONT OF YOU. HERE ARE SOME KEY CONSIDERATIONS:

- ➡ What it takes to make a product. What does the manufacturing process look like?
- ➡ How long the product will last. How much use will you get out of it?
- ➡ What it takes to get a product to you. Is there a locally made or closer-to-you option?
- ➡ What happens to the product when you're done with it. Can it be transitioned back into the manufacturing stream, or can it return to the earth in a way that doesn't add any trash?
- ➡ What the product does once it's in your home (for example, off-gassing).

Green-Greener-Greenest: Gardening

YOU MAY HAVE PUT YOUR GREEN THUMB TO BED FOR THE SEASON, BUT IF YOU'RE LIKE MANY PEOPLE, YOU'RE ALREADY PLANNING FOR NEXT SPRING. KEEP THE FOLLOWING IN MIND FOR NEW PLANTS AND CONTINUING MAINTENANCE.

GET GREEN: In the spring, skip the chemical weed controls in favor of a hefty layer of mulch. It'll keep weeds down and conserve water. Plan a weekly swing through your garden to pluck any straggling weeds (go for 10 minutes a night to prevent fatigue and fit it into your schedule).

GET GREENER: Plant native or Zone-appropriate plants. Natives are typically adapted to the water, heat, and cold stressors of your climate, and regional-appropriate plants won't die each year (saving you a trip to the greenhouse). If you have to water, consider a drip irrigation system, measure water intake (1 inch a week including rain should do it), and water in the morning or at dusk (so the water doesn't simply evaporate).

GET YOUR GREENEST: Add a rain barrel and compost pile/bin to your garden setup. Small-space alternatives are widely available, and your compost serves as a homemade fertilizer for your plants (plus does double duty by reducing your trash load too).

LABELS THAT MATTER

PRODUCT LABELS CAN BE PURE MARKETING, OR THEY CAN REALLY HELP YOU MAKE GREENER CHOICES. EDUCATE YOURSELF ON WHAT THESE POPULAR CERTIFICATIONS MEAN:

B Corp: a business that resolves to follow social and environmental standards

Cradle to Cradle: recognition of sustainability metrics on an end-to-end basis

Energy Star: the mark of energy efficiency in operation

Fair Trade: a nod to companies adhering to specific social, environmental, and economic standards

FSC: recognizes wood harvested from forests that are sustainably managed

Green E: verifies clean energy and sustainable products and services

Greenguard: signifies low emissions, which makes a positive impact on air quality

LEED: a rating for a whole building's construction—not for a particular product

Made Safe: only safe-for-human ingredients are used in manufacturing of a product, including furniture, purifiers, and cleaners

WaterSense: an EPA-verified water and energy saver

Don't Be Fooled by Greenwashing

Companies make all sorts of eco claims about DIY products and services.
Keep your eyes peeled for common misstatements and terms that aren't really green.

Product claims such as “Free of [insert ingredient]” may not pass muster. For example, a boast of “lead-free paint” isn’t really touting anything: Lead paint was banned in 1978. CFCs (or chlorofluorocarbons) are also banned. Many products are labeled as nontoxic when they contain harmful ingredients. Before you’re swayed by flashy claims, do a bit of research to figure out what’s behind the bright packaging and nifty logo.

Certification on labels may not mean what you think it does. Where’s the certification from? Where does the organization get its funding? Take “certified nontoxic,” for example: No organization or department of the federal government regulates that term. Products can be Energy Star certified but not LEED certified.

Third-party awards may mean something, but also may not. What’s the third party? Is it unbiased? If it’s a nonprofit, who (or what) funds the group?

Watch for terms that sound good but really don't mean a thing about a product's eco-friendliness.

- All natural, nontoxic, and chemical-free: These terms are not defined and not regulated.
- Biodegradable: Is this about the product (like a cleaning solution) or the packaging? For packaging, see if it’s made with recycled content or PET/HDPE materials.
- Green: Any company can call anything green.

4 GREEN THINGS YOU CAN DO TODAY

THESE STEPS WILL GET YOU ON THE ROAD TO ECO-FRIENDLY DIYS FAST.

- 1. Focus on maintenance. Change filters in appliances regularly to improve their energy efficiency. Take care of your tools. Every time you invest a few extra minutes in maintenance, you’ll save yourself from having to spend extra dollars on new stuff.
- 2. Repair things when they break. Seems obvious right? But ignore a fix and you’ll have to either spend more on upkeep or on replacement. That can lead to all sorts of non-green costs—you’re buying a new tool and have to throw away packaging.
- 3. Check your DIY stash. A few spots in my bathroom recently needed a caulk retouch, so when I was at the hardware store I grabbed another tube. When I was searching for my caulk gun, I found not one, not two, but three tubes of caulk I already had. I ended up wasting not only my dollars but also product and packaging. Always take a quick inventory before you shop—and store like items together so it’s easy to see what you have and what you don’t.

- 4. Be conscious about your trash. Municipalities want to help you throw away all that icky stuff we use, such as oil-base paints. Local recycling rules are clear about what you can (and cannot) toss into your bin. If you’re in doubt, the internet can help you find where to unload hazardous items.

SHOULD YOU OR SHOULDN'T YOU?

- ➔ CHOOSE LED BULBS: YES! This is a simple way to make a day-to-day change that really does trim your energy and purchase costs. LEDs last longer than other types of bulbs, come in dimmable options, and are available for nearly every use, from outdoor to indoor fixtures.
- ➔ INSTALL A TANKLESS WATER HEATER: Probably. Because these supply hot water on demand, you don't waste a lot of energy keeping hot a tank of water that isn't being used.
- ➔ BUY AN AIR PURIFIER: Maybe. There's been a huge focus in the last year and a half on indoor air quality, and that's certainly something to take a keen interest in as a DIYer. But it's not a given that you actually need an air purifier. If opening windows is an option, that's a great, no-cost solution for removing indoor air pollutants. (Even in winter, a slightly opened window or two to enable cross-ventilation can help.) If you do decide you want an air purifier, check the filter; it should be a HEPA option. You'll have to size up the purifier for bigger spaces, and remember to change the filter regularly. Finally, look for an AHAM (Association of Home Appliance Manufacturers) Verifide seal.

MEET THE MAKER

WEAVING HAND

Cynthia Alberto ties together her love of craft and sustainability by teaching others the healing power of weaving.

WORDS RACHEL O'BRIEN PHOTOGRAPHS MARTY BALDWIN

THE PORTABLE PEG LOOM KIT IS PERFECT FOR BEGINNERS. IT COMES WITH ENOUGH WARP STRING AND COLORFUL YARN TO COMPLETE ONE PROJECT.

CYNTHIA ALBERTO STARTED HER CAREER AS A PAINTER, BUT AFTER TAKING CLASSES IN WEAVING SHE FELL IN LOVE WITH FIBER ARTISTRY. IN 2006 SHE OPENED WEAVING HAND, A BROOKLYN SHOP THAT TEACHES CLASSES AND WORKSHOPS, CREATES COMMISSIONS, AND SELLS WEAVING SUPPLIES. CYNTHIA FOCUSES ON HOW WEAVING CAN BE HEALING AND HOW TO CREATE ZERO WASTE AND THINK SUSTAINABLY WHEN MAKING WEAVING PROJECTS.

THE MAKER: CYNTHIA ALBERTO

The owner of Weaving Hand focuses on how to bring a community together through fiber crafting.

Q: What influences your work?

A: My own personal work centers on activism to make sure we are healing the community while infusing how to make fiber arts with zero waste. The value of crafts is being put in a whole different light now—we want to make sure we are preserving them and making them sustainable. We need to make sure that we are passing that knowledge on to the next generations.

Q: What is your favorite aspect of teaching classes and workshops?

A: I really enjoy passing on the knowledge. Teachers give you the fundamentals—they give you a little bit of themselves and their knowledge. Then it's up to you to take it and make it yours. I think everybody should learn how to weave. Weaving and working with your hands can be very grounding and calming.

Q: What do you teach in your workshops and classes?

A: Our classes are about learning how to dress the loom and how to how to read weave structures and create them. The loom comes with the class so you take the loom with you. We teach classes to people of all ages and abilities, showing them how to make anything from tote bags to carpets and pillows.

Q: Your materials talk about weaving as a community-building activity. How is Weaving Hand part of the community?

A: It's always been the core mission of Weaving Hand to be very inclusive—it's for everybody. Weaving is a craft that's been around since the beginning of time. It's our very basic covering, our very basic necessity—clothes. It's also always been part of healing. It's the whole idea of going back and forth to help soothe your mind with repetitive motion as you weave.

COMMUNITY CULTIVATION

Weaving Hand positions itself as a place to promote working side by side (1). Cynthia Alberto takes portable looms to schools and gatherings to teach weaving and inspire others to learn more about it (2). Her business also emphasizes sustainability. "We're teaching people that you can actually repurpose old clothes and make new woven yardage out of them," Cynthia says. "We also teach recycling and repurposing to the younger generation to make sure that they're taking care of Mother Earth." Make your own zero-waste project with one of the looms sold at weavinghand.com/products (3).

PEG LOOM TAPESTRY

MATERIALS

- 14-inch wood dowel
- Peg Loom Kit, available for $30 at weavinghand.com/products
- Fork (optional)
- dowel (optional)

The kit includes:

- Peg loom
- Needle
- 6 colors of yarn
- Cotton warp string
- Weaving instruction manual

Step 1 Lay out your kit supplies, including the loom, needle, yarn, and warp string to create a tapestry with the help of the loom's easy-to-use pegs (A).

Step 2 Dress your loom. Tie a tight double knot around the top left-hand peg with the end of your warp string. Bring the string down to the bottom left-hand peg and loop it around the peg. Keeping tension in the string, tightly wrap it around each peg, alternating between the top and bottom pegs. Wrap until you get to the bottom right-hand peg. Cut the string and tie a double knot, keeping the string as taut as possible (B).

Step 3 Thread your first color of yarn through the needle eye and knot. Using the plain-weave technique, weave yarn by alternating the needle over and under the warp strings. Repeat this technique with each color of yarn, leaving enough yarn to tuck in the end pieces when you change yarn colors. Use your fingers or a fork to tap each row against the row before it to keep rows tight. Create texture between colors by tying yarn to the warp strings and then trimming to desired length (C).

Step 4 Finish the tapestry by carefully removing the warp loops from the pegs one by one to release your tapestry from the loom. Knot the strings snugly along the top and bottom edges. To add fringe on the bottom of the hanging, knot approximately 2-inch pieces of warp string to each warp loop. Using additional pieces of warp string, tie double knots on the top edge to create three loops. Slide a dowel through the loops to hang the project.

CHANGE THE TAPESTRY BY TURNING ONE COLOR BLOCK INTO A THREE-DIMENSIONAL ACCENT.

MOBILE OFFICE

Purposeful upgrades and smart storage hacks convert a basic rolling cart into a movable workstation that gets the job done—anywhere in the house.

PROJECTS MOLLY REID SINNETT PHOTOGRAPHS JASON DONNELLY WORDS CHELSEA EVERS

THAT'S A WRAP Keep cord clutter at bay with zip ties. Secure a power strip to the side of the cart with removable hook-and-loop strips, then tie down cords inconspicuously along the railing of the cart for easy access to other supplies.

SORT & STICK Made to hold spices and kitchen sundries, these magnetic tins attach to the side of a metal cart and are ideal for corralling small necessities like paper clips or rubber bands. Grundtal container, $8 for three pieces; ikea.com

TIDY TROLLEY Transform a basic metal utility cart into a hardworking portable office with a few effortless add-ons. (For more on the cart, see page 31.) A hanging caddy keeps chargers, pens, and sticky notes within reach, while a tablet stand sets up a second screen. Magnetic canisters, clear bins, and a portable scanner mean you'll have all you need to make your nine-to-five (or five-to-nine) run smoothly.

FILE STYLE Keep often-used documents at the ready when you store them in a plate rack on your cart's top. Constructed from solid maple, it features four slots for filing important paperwork. Medium Maple Rack, $8; containerstore.com

SEW EASY

PILLOWS

Sewing your own covers takes your throw pillow game to the next level (because fabric!). Here's how to craft two dressmaker-detail closures—buttons and zipper.

MAKING THROW PILLOW
COVERS GIVES YOU CONTROL
OVER THE SHAPE, SIZE, FABRIC, CLOSURE, AND TYPE OF
INSERT FOR YOUR PILLOWS.

MAKE IT

BUTTON FLANGE CLOSURE

MATERIALS

- Fabric (1 yard is enough for our lumbar pillow)
- Iron
- Pins
- Fabric marker
- Thread
- Sewing machine and buttonhole presser foot
- Buttons
- Pillow insert

Step 1 We created a 14x22-inch lumbar pillow with a button flange closure, right. For this size, cut two pieces of fabric (A), each 15 inches tall and 26½ inches wide (be aware of your fabric's orientation if you are using one with a directional pattern like ours).

Step 2 On the short end that will be the flange, press a ½-inch fold, then fold 2 inches and press (B). Stitch the fold (C). Do this for both pieces.

Step 3 Mark buttonholes at desired intervals on one of the pieces. Use pins to mark the stop and start of each finished hole (D).

Step 4 Using the buttonhole presser foot on the sewing machine, stitch three buttonholes to fit desired buttons (E).

Step 5 Hand-stitch buttons to inside (wrong side) of flange without button holes (F). Using small scissors, very carefully cut open buttonholes (G).

Step 6 Pin the two pieces of the pillow cover with right sides together. Be sure to align the flange opening. Stitch around three sides with ½-inch seam (H). Be sure to stitch forward, reverse, and forward again at the start and stop of each run.

Step 7 Turn pillow cover right side out and press.

Step 8 Insert pillow form and slide buttons through holes.

Get the look: To get the same look without making buttonholes, hand-stitch the open end of the pillow cover closed at the flange seam. Hand-sew buttons on top of flanges (catching both top and bottom flange with stitches).

HIDDEN ZIPPER CLOSURE

MATERIALS

- Fabric (1 yard is enough for our square pillow cover if you are not using a directional fabric)
- Iron
- Invisible zipper
- Pins
- Thread
- Sewing machine and zipper presser foot
- 20-inch pillow insert

Step 1 We created a square pillow cover with a hidden zipper closure to fit a 20-inch pillow insert, left. For this size, cut two 21-inch squares of fabric (A).

Step 2 Press open the invisible zipper teeth (B). Use a low temperature setting on the iron to press open a tiny fold on the zipper's tape.

Step 3 Using the zipper presser foot on your sewing machine and with the zipper open, stitch the zipper to the right side of one piece of fabric at one edge (C). Note: Stitch very close to the zipper's teeth. Start and stop sewing 1 inch from the ends of the fabric. Your zipper may extend past where you stopped stitching. The seam where you sew the fabric together will act as the zipper stop. Close the zipper.

Step 4 Align (but do not pin) the second piece of fabric with right sides together on top of the piece with the zipper. Pin the zipper's tape to fabric (D) while gently pulling to "ease in" the fabric. Buckles in the fabric are OK in the pinned version. Unzip the zipper carefully (E).

Step 5 Stitch the zipper's tape to second piece of fabric on the right side of the fabric and ease any wrinkles in the fabric. Close the zipper. Align the two fabric squares right sides together and pin the three unstitched edges.

Step 6 Stitch around the perimeter. Close to zipper teeth, start stitching about 2 inches from end of zipper, overlapping zipper stitching. Make round corner about 1 inch from fabric corner (F). Continue around three open sides with 1/2-inch seam allowance, rounding corners. After final corner, stitch next to zipper teeth about 2 inches. Be sure to stitch forward, reverse, and forward again at the start and stop of each run.

Step 7 Clip corners and trim excess zipper (G). Turn cover right side out and push corners gently with the eraser end of a pencil, a chopstick, or a knitting needle. Press pillow cover and insert the pillow form. Zip closed.

HIGH CONTRAST Hydrangeas might not seem like a traditional addition to a holiday arrangement, but when mixed with pops of red roses and wintry silver brunia, they certainly look the part, above. Position hydrangeas first in a tall pitcher. Nestle the roses and berries among the blooms to complete the look. To keep hydrangeas looking fresh, when the blooms begin to wilt, cut at least an inch off the stem while under running water and get into fresh water immediately.

ONE AND DONE Bigger, in this case, is better. One large poinsettia steals the show of this arrangement, above, and fir sprigs and hypericum stems tuck behind to support the star. Add a floral frog (or make your own from a ball of chicken wire) to support your focal bloom front and center. Fill in behind the poinsettia with stems.

ORNAMENTAL ARRANGING

While this arrangement looks ornate, this photo, it's actually super simple! Shape a floral support from a ball of chicken wire to fit the container. Starting in the middle of your container, tuck cut stems into the support, finishing with shorter stems around the edge. Accentuate the arrangement with green ornaments glued to floral picks.

WHEN YOU GET THE BOUQUET HOME, GIVE THE STEMS A FRESH CUT BEFORE ADDING TO THE VASE TO MAKE THEM LAST AS LONG AS POSSIBLE.

STATEMENT MAKER Bold and beautiful. This monochromatic grouping, above, is sure to turn heads. Make a floral support out of chicken wire or insert floral foam to fit the desired container (the taller, the better!). Cut stems at an angle, then place a few of the biggest blossoms to begin to map out your arrangement. Add greenery and more large flowers, followed by smaller flowers to fill in gaps. Glue red ornaments to plant stakes and tuck among the stems to finish your arrangement.

take your pick

When making a from-scratch arrangement, fresh greenery adds the perfect professional finishing touch. Below are a few favorites to mix with purchased bouquets.

DO IT BETTER

FIND THESE (AND MORE) GREENERY OPTIONS AT MOST LOCAL GROCERY STORES OR FLORAL SHOPS. OR TAKE A PEEK OUTSIDE YOUR WINDOW AND TRIM FROM A NEARBY TREE.

SILVER BRUNIA

Perfect for a wintry touch in your arrangement, these silver baubles typically are sold in sets of two or three stems.

RED HYPERICUM

These woody stems add a little color to any bouquet with a sprinkle of red berries.

GREEN HYPERICUM

Similar to its red cousin, green hypericum berries are long-lasting and add texture to your bouquet.

VARIEGATED PITTOSPORUM

Technically a shrub, this variegated, rounded foliage helps fill out arrangements with a double dose of green.

MAKE THEM last

- Make sure the vase is clean, and fill with warm water. Mix in the floral food packet or a spoonful of sugar combined with a teaspoon of white vinegar or bleach to help control bacteria.
- Give flowers a fresh cut under running water with sharp scissors, flower snips, or hand pruners. Cut thick, green stems at an angle. Trim woody stems with an X-shape cut.

- Remove any foliage that sits below the waterline.

- Change the water every couple of days.
- Trim off spent flowers right away.
- Display flowers in a cool area away from vents and out of direct sunlight.

BELLS OF IRELAND

These unusual cuttings add height and a modern feel with their meandering, chartreuse stems.

SCOTCH PINE

Nothing says holiday quite like pine. Take trimmings from a nearby tree to fill in and finish your arrangement.

SEEDED EUCALYPTUS

All eucalyptus varieties are great as greenery additions; seeded eucalyptus has sturdy, malleable stems that work well when mixed with other flowers and greens.

BALSAM FIR

An added perk of incorporating balsam fir into your bouquet? The piney, holiday smell that comes with it!

their OWN PACE

A creative couple took 10 years to renovate their 1955 ranch—using the time to protect their budget, perfect their minimal modern style, and enjoy family life.

WORDS SARAH EGGE PHOTOGRAPHS LAUREY GLENN STYLING CATHY STILL MCGOWIN

MOD INFLUENCES Jarrod and Stacy Allen look to Scandinavia, Japan, and Australia for modern design ideas. They built the living room credenza out of IKEA cabinets and mounted it to float above the floor for a clean look sans legs, this photo.

FOR ONE OF HIS FIRST HOME PROJECTS, JARROD ALLEN WENT TO THE BANK, HANDED OVER $5 AND ASKED FOR CHANGE: “CAN I HAVE IT ALL IN NICKELS, PLEASE?” HE ASKED. AFTER YEARS SPENT EMPTYING WALLETS, looking under sofa cushions, and asking kids Jude and Eva to search their piggy banks, the change finally yielded enough five-cent spacers for him to install the kitchen wall planks. Nickels for nickel-gap paneling—not every DIYer leans so much toward authenticity, but Jarrod does. As a product designer, he makes a living smoothing technicalities. His photographer wife, Stacy, is equally detail-oriented. Perhaps it’s no surprise that the renovation of their simple 1955 ranch near Birmingham, Alabama, took 10 years. They talked about hiring help to speed up the process, but other than the few occasions they needed a pro, they learned from each project and took the time to do it themselves. “There would be an unconventional method that would pop into my head that I wanted to try,” Jarrod says, “or a really important detail that I wanted to be involved in to have it turn out correctly.”

The gradual transformation allowed the couple to research, plan, search for low-cost materials, and learn new skills. There’s been an upside to the slow roll, Stacy says: “It took us a long time, but I’m thankful for that. It helped that we slowed down to create aspects of our house that are timeless.”

ALL IN Stacy asked Jarrod to help refinish her grandmother’s dresser on their first date, and from there a DIY-focused marriage was born. They redid their kitchen, above, for less than $10,000. Kids Jude, 12, and Eva, 10, get in on the renovating too. “Both are handy but in different ways,” Jarrod says.

➡ Stacy Allen chronicles this project on her blog at mtnsidehome.com.

A HAND-RUBBED DANISH OIL APPLICATION DARKENS THE WALNUT INITIALLY, BUT THE WOOD NATURALLY LIGHTENS OVER TIME.

DO IT BETTER

JARROD USED A NAIL GUN AND NICKELS AS SPACERS BETWEEN 1x6 BOARDS. THE THIN SHADOWS CREATED BY THE SPACES GIVE THE WALLS EXTRA DIMENSION. TO GET CLEAN EDGES AS HE WRAPPED THE CORNERS, JARROD MITERED THE BOARDS AT 45-DEGREE ANGLES.

TABLE GRACE Eva perches at the live-edge bar, above, that Jarrod created from a piece of walnut milled by a friend's grandfather. He mounted it by hiding white brackets in notches he cut into the wall paneling and the bottom of the wood. To get the look of high-end metallic-tip bulbs, Stacy bought Edison-style bulbs at Home Depot, taped off the bottom, and spray-painted them with brass-color paint. To make their dining table, left, Stacy and Jarrod bought vintage heart pine from a local reclaimed-wood store and protected it by applying Minwax Paste Finishing Wax. They added hairpin legs bought off Etsy and Eames-style chairs. Stacy shot the family photos; extra-large mats provide a sleek presentation.

GOOD LINES Wall paneling runs vertically in the home office for a little extra interest. The desk gets hard use by the whole family for DIY project research, materials ordering, homework, and Stacy's photography business. She and Jarrod formed the desk out of a butcher-block countertop, a storage cabinet from IKEA, and a metal sawhorse-style leg.

GROWN-UP STYLE For Christmas last year, Jude got a bedroom redo that included a striking black wall covered in V-groove boards. Jude helped his dad make the concrete side table after they watched a how-to video online.

IN SMALL SPACES, A STATEMENT LIGHT HAS HUGE STYLE IMPACT—AND THE FIXTURE DOESN'T HAVE TO BE PRICEY. THIS ONE WAS JUST $20.

CAVIAR

SHERWIN-WILLIAMS.COM

JARROD MOUNTED THE 10½-FOOT-LONG MAPLE BOARDS USING HIDDEN FRENCH CLEATS THAT RUN VERTICALLY AS BRACKETS.

BIG DREAMS On her blog, Stacy cautions readers that their headboard was a complex project involving lots of time-consuming cuts and piecing. They control the sconces with voice commands through their Google Home app, and Jarrod attached chargers under the nightstands to power their phones wirelessly for a minimalist vibe.

SURE & STEADY

Stacy and Jarrod Allen took their time with the renovation of their 1,200-square-foot ranch house and appreciated the benefits of a slow process.

LESS PANIC “Deadlines stress Jarrod out, so I’ve learned to be patient and think, Well, it’s done when it’s done,” Stacy says. “It’s so much more peaceful to let it unfold as it needs to.”

BUDGET-FRIENDLY After saving their tax refunds for years, Stacy and Jarrod had the money to tackle their kitchen. They kept the project under $10,000 by hiring out only the tiling, electrical, and plumbing work.

BETTER QUALITY “I can only work on nights and weekends, so I feel like I need to work until the sun sets. But I’ve learned there’s not a benefit to doing something after there’s nothing left in the tank,” Jarrod says. “If I stop at a reasonable time, take a shower, and eat some dinner with the family, everything goes better.”

FLEXIBILITY The Allens offered the contractor for their new master bathroom

the same approach to timing to ensure they got just what they wanted. “We gave grace on the timeline because we wanted things done correctly. We had waited six years for this bathroom, so what’s four months more?” Stacy says. “And since it was an addition, it wasn’t happening in a part of the house where we frequented, so waiting didn’t affect our daily lives.”

BRIGHT ADD-ON The large, light-filled, master-bath addition was worth the wait, this photo. Jarrod and Stacy hired a contractor to erect the basic structure, then they took it from there. Jarrod found a welder to make the shower frame and a painter to powder-coat it, but he ordered and inserted the glass panels himself and installed the finished unit. The couple mounted the vanity cabinet to the wall, and Jarrod fashioned a waterfall countertop out of butcher block.

ALL AFLOAT For this storage nook, above, the Allens anchored an IKEA kitchen cabinet to the wall and topped it with a piece of oak. Leftover cuts from butcher-block counters form the floating shelves. “We always order extra countertop to allow for mistakes,” Stacy says.

STRENGTHEN AN ORBITAL STRUCTURE BY GLUING BRACES AT EACH CORNER WHERE THE WREATH FORMS INTERSECT.

CIRCLE STYLE Add geometric drama with a yarn-wrapped fixture, this photo. Glue the top of a 12-inch-diameter wood wreath ring to the inside edge of a 16-inch-diameter ring; clamp until dry. Cut a second set of 12- and 16-inch rings in half. Arrange the halves of the large ring so they're perpendicular to the same-size uncut one; glue and pin-nail in place to hold as the glue dries. Repeat with the small wreath rings. Cut a 1/2-inch square dowel into four 1-inch lengths. To reinforce the build, adhere one dowel length at each corner at the top where the rings converge. Spray-paint in desired color. Once dry, drill a hole the size of the pendant light cord into the top. Cut the plug from the pendant light; feed the cord's cut end through the drilled hole from the bottom. Wrap several colors of yarn around the wood using a figure-eight-style weaving technique in the large gaps, opposite. Hot-glue the yarn ends to secure. Install the fixture (see BHG.com/Light) and screw in an LED bulb.

TO SECURE THE BOWLS, APPLY A HEAVY-DUTY ADHESIVE LIKE E6000 AROUND THE RIM.

DISH IT UP Ceramic and wire bowls team up to create mod fixtures, this photo. To make the pendants, use a ceramic drill bit the same width as the cord to make holes in the bottom center of each bowl. Cut off the light kit's plug and feed the cord end through the open end of the largest bowl and then through each smaller one until the socket is snug inside the bottom bowl. For the tabletop lamp, select items to create your desired shape. We used (from bottom to top) a shallow and wide plastic pasta bowl, a tall drinking cup, a gold candleholder, and a cereal bowl. Drill a cord-size hole through the center of each item (except the top bowl) and through the back of the bottom bowl. Drill a socket-size hole through the top bowl. Cut off the plug from the pendant light kit. Starting at the top, feed the cord end through each item and then out the side of the bottom bowl. Wire a new plug onto the cord according to manufacturer's instructions.

UP AGAINST A WALL Reimagine metal half-round wall planters as a pair of sconces, this photo. Lightly sand and spray-paint the planters in your desired color. Hot-gluing the ends of cotton rope in place, wrap rope around adjacent wires to create several 1½-inch sections. Repeat with rope in two other thicknesses, alternating until you are pleased with the design. Hang sconces using screws or drywall anchors, and insert puck lights.

CUBIC ENERGY This geometric wall sconce doubles as a lighting source and a statement piece, opposite and right. Using a chop saw, cut $\frac{3}{4}$ -inch square dowels into four each of the following lengths in inches: 24, 22, 20, 16, 14, 12, 10, and 8. Sand the cut edges. To assemble the largest frame, lay two 24-inch lengths parallel to one another on your work surface. Place the remaining two 24-inch dowels atop the first two to form a square. Position for an overlap of about 1 inch at all corners (A). Add a dab of wood glue at each corner. In a similar fashion, layer horizontal 22-inch lengths atop the 24-inch frame; glue in place. Add the remaining 22-inch lengths to finish the square. Repeat with the 20-inch lengths to complete the outer frame. To make the inner frame, repeat the process using the 16-, 14-, 12-, 10-, and 8-inch lengths. Allow both assemblies to dry before hanging.

HANG IT When the frame is complete, hard wire a light socket to your wall scone box. If you don't already have a wall scone box, consult with an electrician to add one. Hang your inner and outer frames on nails in the wall, making sure they're level. For extra flair, opt for a decorative gold-tip bulb, this photo. Find them online from home retailers like West Elm or CB2 or from specialty light retailers. If you want to skip the hard wiring, use a battery-operated puck light.

FRINGE BENEFITS Repurpose the top ring of a lampshade frame to create this casual pendant, above. Wrap $\frac{1}{4}$ -inch twisted cotton rope around the ring, securing the ends with hot glue. Cut six 30-inch lengths of $\frac{3}{4}$ -inch twisted cotton rope. Neatly wrap yarn around each length to cover the natural color, leaving 11 inches exposed at each end. Switch yarn colors as desired, securing ends with hot glue as needed. Unravel the ends of the rope to create tassels. Use painters tape to mark six evenly spaced points on the lampshade ring. Fold the yarn-covered ropes in half, and use a small piece of yarn in the color that matches the rope's midpoint to tie rope to the frame at each point. Overlap the two ends of the rope, whipstitching where they intersect using a needle and thread. Join the tassels of adjacent ropes.

BASKET CASE Fashion this boho-inspired cluster light, this photo, from a multiple-light pendant kit available online. Disassemble the light, removing each wire from the canopy. (Snap a pic of the wiring before so you can remember how to reassemble it.)

Select baskets that are fairly similar in size and coloring but include open and tight-weave styles. Using a drill bit that's the same size as the pendant light cord, add holes at the bottom center of each basket. Feed a pendant cord through each basket so the socket tucks snugly inside. Measure how far down you want the fixture to hang from the ceiling, trim away any excess cord, and reassemble the cord ends in the canopy. Install and screw in bulbs.

SET IN CONCRETE Get the look of a high-end floor lamp, this photo, using humble building supplies: countertop concrete mix, an oak board, and a dowel. Safety cones serve as the molds. Top the lamp with a 15x18-inch drum shade—the tall proportions enhance the designer look. See the how-to instructions for the concrete floor lamp, opposite.

CONCRETE LAMP

MATERIALS

- 2x4s
- Chop saw
- Wood glue
- 2½-inch screws
- Drill
- Two 36-inch safety cones
- Duct tape
- Utility knife
- Rubber gloves
- Plastic tub to mix concrete
- White countertop concrete mix
- Nonstick cooking spray
- Pebbles or other filler
- File
- ½-inch extra-long concrete drill bit
- 1x12 oak board
- 1¼-inch-diameter round oak dowel
- Wood clamps
- Sandpaper
- Wood stain
- Cotton rag
- Semigloss acrylic polyurethane
- Paintbrush
- ½-inch wood drill bit
- Drill press (optional)
- Two 30x⅜-inch threaded lamp rods
- Threaded lamp rod connector
- Nuts for threaded lamp rod
- Lamp kit
- Wire cutters
- 15x18-inch lampshade

Step 1 Cut 2x4s into four each of the following lengths: 36, 18, and 11½ inches. Glue and screw the face sides of two 18-inch boards to the ends of two 36-inch boards to create a rectangular side; repeat to create a second side. Toenail-screw (at an angle) the four 11½-inch boards between the two sides to make a freestanding structure. Stand upright, and insert a safety cone upside down through the top opening. Cover the hole at the cone tip with duct tape.

Step 2 Cut off the rigid base of the second cone using a utility knife. Tape the hole at the tip of the second cone.

Step 3 Wearing gloves, mix two bags of concrete mix with water in a plastic tub according to the manufacturer's instructions. Spray the inside of the outer safety cone and the outside of the inner safety cone with cooking spray. Fill the outer cone halfway with the concrete mix.

Step 4 Push the second cone into the first cone until the concrete is about 2 inches thick. Fill the second cone with landscape pebbles, sand, or pieces of rigid foam to prevent it from collapsing from the pressure of the concrete. Top off with any remaining concrete mix as needed so the concrete is level with the top of the outer cone. Tape the cones together at the top to hold the inner cone in place. Allow to dry for 24 hours.

Step 5 Once dry, remove the tape and the inner cone. Lift the outer cone out of the 2x4 rack, and gently slide the cone off the concrete. File the bottom so it's level.

Step 6 Using a concrete bit that's slightly wider than the threaded rod, drill through the tip of the concrete cone.

Step 7 To build the base, cut the oak 1x12 into one 12-inch length for the top, one 10½-inch support block, two 3¼-inch outer legs, and two 2½-inch inner legs. Center the support block on the bottom of the top rectangle, and glue and clamp in place. Once dry, glue and clamp the inner legs to the outer legs with face sides together and bottom edges flush. Once dry, glue and clamp the leg set to either side of the base assembly with edges aligned to the larger block to form a bridge shape. Let dry. Cut a 10-inch dowel length. Sand, stain, and seal the base and the dowel.

Step 8 Using a ½x12-inch extra-long bit and drill or drill press, drill holes through the center points of the base and the dowel to accommodate the threaded rod. If you use a handheld drill to drill the dowel, we recommend you make a temporary jig: clamp long scrap lengths of wood to a table on either side of the dowel to keep it steady and straight as you drill through its tip. You can even clamp your cordless drill upside down to the table using scrap blocks to hold it in place so your drill tip is perfectly centered on the dowel. Flip the dowel and drill through the other end, if needed, to connect the two holes if your bit won't reach.

Step 9 Assemble the floor lamp: Connect threaded lamp rods to one another with the connector. Feed the cord through the rod, and then feed the rod through the wood base, the concrete body, and the dowel. Install the lamp kit according to manufacturer's instructions. Top with the lampshade.

BOX FRAME At only 24 inches tall, this low-profile boxy floor lamp offers intimate uplighting as grass-cloth wallpaper painted for a gradient effect filters the light, this photo. The frame is constructed from square dowels, and the side spindles are cut from round dowels. We painted this frame for a punch of color, but you could leave the wood natural for a more neutral look. See the step-by-step instructions for the floor lamp, opposite.

WOVEN FLOOR LAMP

MATERIALS

- 1-inch square dowels
- 5/8-inch round dowels
- Cream grass-cloth wallpaper
- Crafts knife
- Straightedge
- Chop saw or miter saw
- 5/8-inch drill bit
- Drill or drill press
- Wood glue
- Pin nailer
- Sandpaper
- Spray primer/paint in green and matte white
- Hot-glue gun and glue sticks

Step 1 Cut dowels and wallpaper according to Cut List, below.

Step 2 Using a drill press or a drill and bit, make five 1/2-inch-deep, 5/8-inch-diameter holes in eight of the horizontal braces at the 2-, 4-, 6-, 8-, and 10-inch marks (A).

Step 3 Apply glue to the ends of five round spindles and insert them into the predrilled holes of one of the braces. Glue the opposite ends of the dowels and insert them into the holes of another predrilled brace. Repeat with the remaining predrilled braces and spindles to create three more side panels.

Step 4 Place a 24-inch leg at one end of a side panel and a 12-inch horizontal brace perpendicular to the leg, making sure they're aligned and flush. Glue and pin-nail them in place (B). Add another 24-inch leg to the opposite side of the panel, and glue and pin-nail in place to create a frame-style leg. Repeat with another side panel and the two remaining legs and horizontal brace to create a second frame-style leg. Secure remaining side panels to the frame-style legs to create a freestanding box.

Step 5 To assemble the socket support, lay one 7-inch-long square dowel on a flat surface, and then lay another perpendicular to and 1 3/4-inch from one end; glue and pin-nail in place to create half of the socket support. Repeat with the remaining two 7-inch lengths to form the second half. Connect the two halves, leaving a 1 3/4-inch square in the middle for the socket, gluing and pin-nailing in place. Install the socket support assembly by gluing and pin-nailing it to the lower elevated braces (C).

Step 6 Sand and paint the lamp frame.

Step 7 Lay wallpaper strips in two sets of four. Using matte white paint, spray the bottom strips more heavily, then taper off as you move up to the other three strips in each set for a vertical gradient effect.

Step 8 Once dry, hot-glue one end of a bottom strip to the back of one round dowel, and weave it through the round dowels (D). When you run out of paper, glue it to the back of a round dowel and finish the woven row with the bottom painted strip from the second pair. Trim the excess.

Step 9 Working your way up and alternating as you go, continue weaving the remaining strips through the dowels.

Step 10 Feed the cord of the pendant light kit through the socket holder and position the socket in the center of the unit; allow the cord to trail out the back. Screw in a lightbulb.

TOADLY MAGICAL

Go for a whimsical, woodland moment by adorning a miniature tree with playful mushrooms made from easy-to-work-with modeling clay.

WE USED CRAYOLA MODEL MAGIC TO MAKE THE MUSHROOMS. IT'S PLIABLE AND PAINTABLE AND COMES IN AN ARRAY OF COLORS.

Step 1 Use jar lids in a variety of sizes to cut out mushroom caps.

Step 2 Roll clay into logs to make 3- to 5-inch stems. Play with the clay and work with your fingers to add details like curves, twists, and imperfections in the stems and caps for a realistic appearance. Let the shapes air-dry overnight—they won't completely harden but this step will help them hold their shape. Then hot-glue the caps and stems together.

Step 3 Paint caps in shades of red, orange, yellow, and green, then dab on random touches of brown paint to create an organic effect on the stems and underside of the caps.

Step 4 Rub with furniture wax to create imperfections, then brush tops with decoupage medium and sprinkle with glitter; let dry.

Step 5 Insert a screw eye into the top of each cap for hanging.

- Fresh evergreens
- Wood or foam star-shape form
- Twine
- Hot-glue gun and glue sticks
- Heavy adhesive spray

- Sawtooth picture hanger or U-shape florists pin and wire

Step 1 Cut evergreens to desired sizes to cover form.

Step 2 Wrap wood form's arms and center with twine for tucking in greenery, right. Hot-glue greenery to fill in shape. An alternative is to pin greenery onto a foam star form; hot-glue evergreen pieces to fill in holes.

Step 3 Spray finished wreath with heavy adhesive, then sprinkle with Epsom salts and white glitter.

Step 4 Nail a sawtooth hanger to the back of the wood form or anchor a florists wire loop to the foam form with a U-shape florists pin.

FOUND GIFTS Transform a collection of twigs, moss, freeze-dried cranberries, hypericum berries, rose hips, and woodland finds into ornaments, below, for the tree or to use on packages or as party favors. To create wreaths, attach natural elements with hot glue to cardboard shapes. Try drying pinecone scales of similar colors and sizes for a tiny wreath. Glue on extra embellishments. Add a little shimmer by lightly painting on golden highlights where desired. Glue cord loops to the back to hang.

LASTING MEMORIES Treasure favorite vintage photos in handmade pinecone frames, above. Cut cardboard into shapes such as circles, squares, and diamonds. Pull scales off dried pinecones (see drying tip, below) using needle-nose pliers, and sort into groups of similar size and color. Hot-glue to edge of cardboard in an overlapping fashion. Cut photocopies of photos to fit frames and affix to cardboard. If desired, hot-glue decorated cardboard to a set of twigs doubled up and lashed with twine to create a rectangular accent. Glue cord loops to the back to hang.

PICK YOUR PARTS

Combine several smaller projects to create a luxe headboard for a queen-size bed, right. Our design spans a 10-foot wall and sports 18-inch-deep wings on either side, but you can size yours to fit your bed, room, or personal style. The main portion of our design begins with five 34-inch-tall medium-density fiberboard (MDF) panels upholstered in velvet. We then topped each panel with two velvet-wrapped bolsters (see page 78) and a white oak art ledge. We extended the coziness by upholstering part of a simple box frame for the mattress to sit on (see page 79) and added sconces and floating nightstands as finishing touches. Read on for all the details.

MIX AND MATCH
OUR WRAPAROUND
HEADBOARD'S
PROJECTS TO SUIT
YOUR STYLE, SPACE, AND SKILLS.

WRAP ARTIST From MDF, cut the headboard's wall panels. (We cut one panel at 64x34 inches, two at 26x34 inches, and two at 18x34 inches.) Then cut MDF panels for the bolsters. (We cut two at 4x64 inches, four at 4x26 inches, and four at 4x18 inches.) Arrange your work space so you start with the largest pieces. Spray each front of the wall panels with spray adhesive and lay one layer of standard upholstery batting on top. Cut excess batting around panel edges with scissors for a rounded look. Lay the velvet facedown on a large flat area. Position all MDF panels batting side down and in the same direction on the fabric so the grain of the velvet will go the same way for each piece. Cut the fabric to the size of the panel plus 5 inches for the width and length. You'll have 2½ inches of extra fabric on each side to wrap to the back of the panel and staple. Wrap the fabric around each panel and, starting with a long side, staple the fabric along the length of the board. Next, pull the parallel side of the fabric taut and staple, keeping fabric smooth. Repeat for short sides. For corners, wrap like a gift. Staple into place, keeping fabric as smooth and flat as possible. Repeat for all wall panels. For the bolsters that top the wall panels, use an electric knife to cut 2-inch-thick upholstery foam to the same sizes as the 4-inch MDF panels. Use each panel as a template, mark the foam, then cut. Spray each MDF panel with adhesive and attach the matching foam piece. Let dry. Then cut the corners from the foam's long sides at 45-degree angles (A). Upholster as you did the panels. (To include sconces, see page 80.) Install the panels to the wall using French cleats, securing to studs or use wall anchors. Use heavy-duty hook-and-loop fasteners to attach bolsters to the wall.

box frame

BOXED IN Cut the box frame panels from MDF. For a queen-size mattress, cut two at 9x64 inches and two at 9x82 inches. Upholster three of the box frame pieces, leaving one 9x64-inch piece unupholstered because it sits against the headboard and isn't seen. Cut the frame's solid bottom (what the mattress rests on) from ½-inch-thick plywood: two at 62½x40¼ inches. Cut the bed base from 1x6 white oak: two at 61 inches, two at 77½ inches. Sand the oak pieces and apply clear coat. Build the box frame for the mattress. Use ¾x3½-inch L brackets to fasten the upholstered MDF panels into a box with brackets 1¾ inches from the top and bottom of each panel. Cut two 62-inch and two 78-inch braces from ½-inch trim; screw these pieces ½ inch from the bottom of the panels. These will hold the plywood base. Turn the assembly over and set the two plywood pieces into place inside the upholstered frame, resting on the trim pieces. Screw into place into the trim pieces along the perimeter of the box (B). Next, build the oak base. The box frame will overhang the base 6 inches on all sides except for the head of the bed, where the base will sit flush against the headboard. Form butt joints so the long sides are flush against the short pieces. Secure the corners of the oak box with 6-inch pieces of ½-inch trim. Secure the oak box to the plywood on the box frame (C) with additional pieces of ½-inch trim.

BRIGHT ACCOUTREMENTS Each wall sconce on our design is centered at the top of a 26x34-inch wall panel. Measure 14 inches from the edge of the panel that will touch the wall and 4 inches from the center top of the panel. Drill a 1½-inch-diameter hole on center (A). Plan for the top of the shelf to hang 20 inches from the floor. Drill a second, lower hole to accommodate the thickness of your shelf. Ours is about 10 inches below the first, 14 inches from the panel's edge. Use this hole to pass the sconce cord from behind the wall panel and plug into the outlet. Measure the location and size of your electrical outlet, and translate it to the panel by cutting an opening.

Glue and nail the 1x2 pieces to the 1x3 pieces to make an L shape. Fill nail holes with wood putty. Install the ledge by drilling down into the MDF backing of the top bolsters using 1-inch screws.

lasting EXPRESSIONS

For less than $20 and in under 20 minutes, you can etch glass objects into works of art for your tabletop or bar cart. (P.S. They make great holiday gifts.)

PROJECTS AMBER WAGNER PHOTOGRAPHS BLAINE MOATS
STYLING CHRISTY BROKENS WORDS BETH ESLINGER

BOTANICAL FLAIR

Purchased stencils and etching cream are the secret to updating affordable glass bottles, this photo. (These are less than $2 each from specialtybottle.com.) Practice the technique using cast-off glassware before moving on to your final project.

DO IT BETTER

REMOVE ANY CLUMPS IN THE ETCHING CREAM BY SHAKING THE BOTTLE BEFORE STARTING TO ETCH. PRACTICE FIRST TO DETERMINE THE IDEAL AMOUNT OF CREAM TO APPLY.

SERVED IN STYLE

Enhance a sparkly holiday drink station by using a self-adhesive stencil to make a patterned mirrored tray (which could also become a great centerpiece). Once the tray is finished, reuse the stencil to embellish other projects, including fabric options like matching napkins. (See Resources on page 102 for the designs used here.)

ETCHING 101

Before you begin, gather all your supplies, including glassware, Armour Etch cream, protective gloves and eyewear, several sizes of artists brushes, and a plastic sheet to protect the work surface and cleanup space. The cream can damage porcelain and enamel sinks, so use a plastic bucket or utility sink for all cleaning and rinsing. Always apply in well-ventilated spaces.

TEST FIRST To make sure the cream adheres to your glass (it doesn't work on plastic and some Pyrex), dab a small amount on the bottom of your glass with an artists brush. Wait 5 minutes and rinse to see if the cream worked.

ADHERE THE STENCIL Clean your glass with hot, soapy water and let dry. If using a self-adhesive stencil, pull off the paper backing and adhere to the glass surface, removing any air bubbles by pressing with a finger. Stencils can be cut to fit your piece. Tape off the glass around the stencil to prevent accidental drips. If working with stencils that aren't adhesive, attach the design using temporary stencil adhesive or painters tape.

BRUSH WITH CONTROL Wearing protective gloves and glasses, apply an even, thick layer of the cream in one direction, either horizontally or vertically. Wait 10 minutes.

RINSE Using running water in a utility sink or a plastic tub and still wearing gloves and glasses, rinse off the etching cream from the project. Remove the stencil and clean it with soap and water. Let dry and store the stencil flat.

FIND ARMOUR ETCH GLASS ETCHING CREAM STARTING AT $10 FOR A 10-OUNCE BOTTLE. CHECK OUT KITS FOR BEGINNERS AND MORE EXPERIENCED CRAFTERS, PLUS ADDITIONAL PROJECT IDEAS AT ARMOURPRODUCTS.COM.

SELF-ADHESIVE STENCILS ARE EASY TO USE. LOOK ONLINE TO FIND DESIGNS TO MATCH YOUR STYLE, INCLUDING BOTANICALS, GRAPHICS, TYPOGRAPHY, AND MORE.

PRACTICAL IMPACT Etched designs like the ones on the bowls, opposite, are permanent and don't require sealants. Designs work on glassware (including colored), glass jars, glass trays, and more. Read through all of the etching cream instructions before starting your project.

SAVVY PICKS Look in your cupboards for inexpensive glassware to dress up with simple designs, or find glass pieces at thrift, discount, crafts, or dollar stores. Try stripes or graphic looks to create a collection across different pieces. A simple pattern like the one used on these small serving bowls, this photo, makes a lasting impact.

THE THREE

This industrious North Carolina couple coaxed their woefully dated ranch out of 1973 with the triumvirate of renovation: rescuing, refreshing, and reusing.

THERE'S NOT A WALL, FLOOR, OR WINDOW THAT DIDN'T RECEIVE SOME TLC FROM JEFF AND CATHERINE WHITTAKER

when they overhauled their Charlotte ranch. The couple honored the home's '70s heritage (and saved major money) by rescuing vintage furniture from thrift stores and estate sales, refreshing scores from Craigslist and Facebook, and reusing existing pieces for the couple and their three girls, Hazel, 8, and 6-year-old twins Margot and Louise.

"We tried to blend new and old in our renovation and in decorating the house—a mix of modern and vintage just gives you a collected feel that's really unique," says Catherine, an interior designer with Design Post Interiors. "Jeff and I are of the mind-set that if you can incorporate even a few pieces of vintage furniture or elements original to the house, it's worth it to add interest."

"Plus, older houses have so much character," Jeff says. "For me, the older the house, generally the better."

Their 1970s ranch was a time capsule for its era, and every room needed updates. The Whittakers pulled up gold and brown shag carpet and particleboard subfloors, closed some doorways and moved others to finesse the layout, vaulted ceilings, painted walls, overhauled the kitchen, and scoured secondhand sources for furniture and accessories.

"Our biggest goal was to make the house feel bright and open," Catherine says. "We wanted it bright and happy and really livable." The result is a sunny ranch that's befitting the 2020s.

1 Jeff and Catherine Whittaker considered IKEA cabinets for their kitchen, but a local shop had better prices. Because Jeff is handy and loves a project, he and his brother installed them over four days. 2 Jeff tweaked a pair of over-refrigerator cabinets to fit under the apron-front sink in the island. 3 The Whittakers kept the best '70s elements, including this slate porch that extends into the entry.

ALL THE WINDOWS ARE ORIGINAL, BUT CATHERINE AND JEFF PAINTED THE FRAMES AND MUNTINS BLACK TO CONTRAST WITH THE WHITE WALLS. STUNNING!

INSTEAD OF WHITE SHAKER-STYLE PANELS LIKE ON THE REST OF THE CABINETRY, STAINED TONGUE-AND-GROOVE BOARDS DRESS ONE SIDE OF THE ISLAND.

JEFF BUILT A WINE RACK OUT OF 1x LUMBER TO UTILIZE A NARROW SPOT BETWEEN THE CABINETS AND BEVERAGE FRIDGE.

- 4 This storage bank consists of six upper cabinets stacked two wide and three tall. Jeff built a wood platform to elevate them off the floor.
- 5 Catherine found one of these chandeliers at a neighbor's garage sale for free. She commissioned a local lighting shop to create another to match it. Two for the price of one!
- 6 The vent hood of tongue-and-groove boards is a Jeff original.
- 7 The hardwood floors were professionally installed, but to cut down on labor costs, Jeff ripped up the old vinyl and crumbling subfloor himself.
- 8 Jeff converted this corner of the kitchen into a dry bar and drink station, complete with beverage fridge.

CATHERINE COMMISSIONED THIS PAINTING FROM A LOCAL ARTIST SHE DISCOVERED ON FACEBOOK. "I LOVE ORIGINAL ART," SHE SAYS. "IT'S A WORTHWHILE INVESTMENT."

9 In very groovy '70s fashion, this corner featured a wet bar behind bifold doors. The Whittakers converted the space to built-ins for display and storage. 10 White paint everywhere turned the room from dark and dreary to bright and fresh. 11 Jeff built a slim rack next to the hearth to keep firewood in easy reach. 12 The furniture—a mix of new and vintage—is family-friendly for twins, Margot and Louise, and older sister Hazel. Catherine checks consignment stores to find higher-end pieces at great prices, including this sofa and chairs that were in great shape.

DO IT BETTER
THE WHITTAKERS WERE WISE ABOUT WHAT THEY RENOVATED—AND WHAT THEY LEFT ALONE. ONCE THE HALL BATH'S FAUCETS WERE REPAIRED, THE BATH WAS TOTALLY FUNCTIONAL. THEY ADDED A BIGGER MIRROR AND NEW PAINT ON THE VANITY AND WALLS.

- 13 The Whittakers modernized the living room's French doors to the sunroom with black paint.
- 14 Catherine nabbed this Lucite-and-glass table at a local thrift store.
- 15 The octagon mirror has that retro shape and nods to the house's age, but it's new: It came from a Pottery Barn outlet. 16 The hallway bathroom got a light facelift instead of a major overhaul: The countertops, vanity, and hardware all stayed put, but the vanity got a coat of cheery pink paint and the dated wallpaper was stripped in favor of white paint.
- 17 Inspired by a swatch of green velvet, Catherine asked a local upholstery shop to create a headboard with the height and vertical channeling she wanted for the master bedroom.
- 18 Catherine snapped up this pricey burlwood nightstand for a song at a thrift store because its drawer was broken. It was an easy fix.

SMART SHOPPING

Jeff and Catherine Whittaker are shopping sleuths, unearthing treasures wherever and everywhere they look! We picked their brains for tips on finding the best deals.

SHOP LOCALLY The Whittakers scored big on a few items in their home by finding them nearby rather than at big-box stores: The kitchen counters, cabinets, a chandelier over the island, their upholstered bed, and several other furniture pieces all hail from local places. Shopping at small businesses lets you check out prospective purchases in person. If you're a regular, owners may be inclined to contact you when a find you have been looking for comes in.

SHOP OFTEN It's not realistic to think a single trip to a thrift store will yield a bounty (though it certainly could). Instead, Jeff and Catherine make regular trips to a circuit of stores so they're looking for furnishings and accessories for the house often. That consistency pays off with big bargains.

SHOP EVERYWHERE If they're planning a road trip, Catherine will scope out Craigslist and Facebook Marketplace for the cities they're going through, and once they arrive at their destination, they'll drop into local thrift shops and markets to snoop around. "You have to cast a wide net," Catherine says.

A NEIGHBOR WHO IS A GRAPHIC DESIGNER WHIPPED UP SILHOUETTES OF 6-YEAR-OLD TWINS MARGOT AND LOUISE IN PHOTOSHOP. CATHERINE FRAMED AND HUNG THEM OVER THEIR BEDS.

"KIDS ROOMS ARE SUCH AN OPPORTUNITY TO DO SOMETHING FUN AND COLORFUL, BUT AT THE SAME TIME KEEP IT COHESIVE WITH HOW THE REST OF THE HOUSE FEELS."

CATHERINE WHITTAKER, HOMEOWNER AND INTERIOR DESIGNER

DO IT BETTER

RATHER THAN OVERWHELM THE TWINS' ROOM WITH PINK, CATHERINE MADE SURE THE COLOR ENJOYED A FEW BIG POPS, THEN BALANCED IT THROUGHOUT WITH NEUTRALS.

22

19 Catherine hunted high and low for matching vintage spindle beds. She finally found two similar Jenny Lind beds from different sellers and painted them white to unify them.

20 The pink curtains were a Facebook find. Catherine let out some of the pleats so they're wide enough to cover the big window.

21 The hanging chair is another Facebook score. "It's vintage and so fun!" Catherine says.

22 In 8-year-old Hazel's bedroom, a gleaming brass bed takes center stage. "It was really tarnished when I bought it," Catherine says, "so I spent a couple of days in the driveway with Bar Keepers Friend and the bed. It shined up just enough and kept a beautiful patina."

A photograph of a windowsill garden. On a glass shelf, there are several potted plants and herbs. On the left, a wicker basket holds a bunch of green herbs, and next to it is a wooden mortar and pestle. In the center, a large terracotta pot holds a plant with long, thin, arching green leaves. To its right, two smaller terracotta pots hold green herbs. On the bottom shelf, from left to right, there is a small terracotta pot with green herbs, a large white pot with a tall, bushy green herb, a wide terracotta tray filled with small green herbs, and a large white pot with a tall, bushy green herb. The background is a window with a floral patterned curtain on the right side.

FLAVORFUL LEAVES

Hours of bright, direct sunlight make south-facing windows ideal for growing favorite culinary herbs. Maximize growing space in a small window with the help of shelves, this photo. Polished-edge glass shelves balanced on simple matte-brass brackets keep the attention on the plants. Fill a variety of pots with herbs like mint, sage, thyme, and parsley, as well as microgreens. You'll create a bright focal point that also makes for easy snipping.

GROW A STAYCATION Large east-facing windows welcome soft morning light, perfect for growing your own tropical getaway year-round, above. When choosing plants for your window jungle, diversity is key to creating a tropical vibe. Aim to bring together a mix of leaf shapes, sizes, and patterns. A few dramatically large plants—such as bird-of-paradise (far left) and elephant's ear (far right)—anchor this setting, while smaller ones like the round-leaf Chinese money plant (at center on bench) and trailers such as the golden pothos (on stool, lower right) add texture and pattern.

LIGHT SHINES BRIGHT

Hours of afternoon sunshine are ideal for light-loving air plants and succulents, this photo. These low-maintenance plants fit right into hardworking spaces like your home office, laundry room, or entryway, where water needs might be occasionally overlooked. Hang plants from a curtain rod, and mix structured ones like ghost plant (hanging, far left) with trailers like string of bananas (center) for a naturally balanced, living curtain of greenery.

TIE PLANTERS TO A CURTAIN ROD OR HANG FROM S HOOKS. THE ROD SHOULD BE STURDY AND WELL-ANCHORED.

HOUSEPLANT INTEL

Tend an indoor garden with a little TLC plus some plant know-how to make your garden grow!

POT Drainage holes in the bottom of a container are essential to easy plant care. If your pot doesn't have drainage, add holes or choose another vessel.

SOIL Set up new houseplants for success by repotting them in a soil mix designed for indoor plants. Look for soil options at your local garden center. Fertilizer is optional, but if you want plants to grow vigorously, feed at quarter or eighth strength each time you water during the growing season—typically March through September.

LIGHT If the plant's tag indicates a need for bright light, put the plant near a south- or west-facing window. Place low-light plants by an east or north window. Some bright-light plants do fine at an eastern exposure, but if they start to lean toward the window, it's a sign they need more light.

WATER It's time to water when the soil is dry. Assess by sticking your finger in to about your second knuckle. If it's dry, give the plant a soak in the sink—or, even better, the shower so you can rinse the leaves at the same time—until water runs out the pot's drainage holes.
